

Boost compliance rates, optimise training effectiveness and maximise staff retention – at unrivalled scale.

Is your LMS holding you back?

You need a Learning Management system (LMS) that delivers tailored training to your varied workforce and satisfies stringent regulatory requirements – both today and in the future.

An inflexible and unscalable LMS, which cannot keep up with your changing requirements or provide for your continuous training and compliance needs, simply reduces your organisational efficiency and increases your organisational risk.

Highly-regulated industries are particularly vulnerable. If you operate in industries including the public sector, healthcare, education or asset-heavy industries (i.e. manufacturing), you not only have to train your workforce and improve employee performance, but also satisfy regulatory and financial compliance requirements at scale. Automation and digital learning management software has made it easier to deliver training to dispersed and varied employees – be it frontline construction workers, office-based accountants, lab-based scientists or remote-based consultants. But delivery is only one part of the problem. You also need training that is customised to your unique industry demands, engages employees, measures (and improves) employee uptake and simplifies compliance reporting. If you use an inadequate LMS, you'll not only face higher training and admin costs, but risk non-compliance penalties and losing demotivated employees.

In short: without a limitless LMS, you're limiting your growth.

Accipio designs, builds and delivers tailored learning management solutions specifically for your needs. By customising the Totara LMS for you, we enable you to train your workforce, improve employee performance and satisfy compliance – at unrivalled scale.
